3. WHAT TO LOAD ON DAY ONE

Which products should staff be able to sell in the computer from the first week?

Taken from your website catalog. Tick what must be typed in before launch. Hardware (nails, screws, paint) is not on the site — leave it unticked unless you really sell it.

- ☒ Home furniture — beds, dining sets, sofas, coffee tables, wardrobes
- ☒ Office furniture — chairs, desks, conference tables, filing cabinets, reception desks
- ☒ Church & school furniture — pews, pulpits, benches, link chairs, student desks

- ☐ Bags first, furniture later
- ☒ Furniture and bags together from day one
- ☐ Church / school orders first (pews, pulpits, bulk seating)

Do you sell furniture that is already in the showroom, or do you also make pieces after the customer orders?

Example: a customer wants a pulpit in their church colours. You build it in the workshop, then deliver it. That is “made after they order”.

- ☐ Only what is already in the showroom / store
- ☐ Mostly made after they order
- ☒ Both — some ready, some made after they order

Should the computer count timber, foam and fabric — or only finished furniture and bags?

Your site says you manufacture furniture. If we only count finished sofas and desks, we will not know when wood or foam is running out.

- ☐ Yes — also count timber, foam, fabric from the first week
- ☒ Later — for now only count finished chairs, desks, bags
- ☐ No — never track workshop materials in this system

Bag prices on the website vs the shop

Bags on the site already show prices (for example KSh 2,000–3,000). Furniture has no prices — people request a quote.

- ☐ Shop and website bag prices must always be the same
- ☒ Website is a guide; the shop can charge a different price
- ☐ We do not use those website prices — we always quote

Do the same people sell furniture and bags?

- ☐ Yes — one counter sells everything
- ☐ No — furniture staff and bags staff are different

- ☐ Other software

How often do you count physical stock?

- ☒ Weekly ☐ Monthly ☐ Rarely ☐ Never

If a customer wants 20 church chairs and you only have 8 in the shop, can you still write the sale today?

"Yes" means you take the order (and maybe a deposit) and make or fetch the rest later. "No" means you only sell what you can give today.

- ☐ No — only sell what is in the shop today
☒ Yes — write the sale even if some pieces will come later

Unique one-off pieces (serial / name each)?

- ☒ Yes ☐ No — quantities only

Barcode scanner at the counter?

- ☒ Needed at launch ☐ Later
☐ Name search is enough

When chairs or bags are almost finished, who should the computer warn?

Example: office chairs fall below 5. Should the owner see it on the computer, or also get a WhatsApp?

- ☐ Owner ☒ Store / workshop ☐ Sales counter

How should they be told?

- ☒ Only on the computer screen ☒ WhatsApp as well ☐ Email as well

Reports you want in the first month

- ☒ Sales today / this week ☒ Stock on hand ☒ Low stock ☒ Profit by product / category
☒ What a church/company has bought

7. WEBSITE AND WHATSAPPSomeone writes on WhatsApp or the website form. Who replies, and when do you type that order into this system?

The website has a "Quote request / Product inquiry" form. It does not create a sale by itself today.

Should the public website show “in stock” / “out of stock”?
Today furniture is “request a quote” and bags show a price, but neither shows how many you have left.

☒ No — keep asking people to call / WhatsApp
☐ Later — not needed for the first version
☐ Yes — the website must show stock from day one

If you change a bag price in the shop computer, should the website change by itself?

☒ Yes — website must follow the shop ☐ No — we will edit the website ourselves

Does the website show the same things you actually sell in Eldoret?
The site has many furniture photos. Some pages may be old, or you may sell a sofa in the showroom that was never photographed.

☒ Yes — website and shop match
☒ We sell some things in the shop that are not on the website
☐ Some website photos are old / not in the shop now
☐ Both — shop extras and old website photos
